“ Many years ago in WV we answered a knock on the door of our apartment, and there stood old school friend , Tom Gregory who introduced us to a beautiful young woman who was soon to become his wife. We ended up in Pittsburgh not far behind the Gregorys and one day Carol turned up at the law firm where I worked but didn't stay there long. However, we both were there the day of President Kennedy's assassination and since neither had any lunch because of the confusion and general upheaval we went to coffee shop near Kaufmans and grieved and worried about our country over sandwiches and Cokes .Later, when (little?) Tom was born another beautiful Gregory girl was dropped at my door step to play with me so Daddy could go to work. Many visits followed over the years.

You will be remembered, Carol, by all who share the good fortune of having crossed paths with you in this life. Be at peace and know -- in your faith -- that one day you will be with your loved ones again.
